

Explore the Château

For over 50 years, the Château in St. Albain, France, has been used to host people, events, and most importantly conversations – conversations where believers look to plant seeds of the gospel into the hard soil of post-Christian France.

Located in a small town, this old castle serves as a platform into the community. The Château not only provides a location for Christian organizations to host their events, but also organizes a dozen or so events itself, ranging from Christmas outreach events to Biblical training weekends, soccer programs, and family retreats.

The Château has seen many eras of ministry, and we're on the cusp of entering the next. In September of 2016, a new French Director and his family joined the ministry, excited to see the Château as a center for ministry for many more years to come. Currently, the Château has been asked to upgrade its facility to current accessibility standards. Interns provide timely support in maintaining the daily hosting needs of the Château during these special projects.

We're looking for interns who jump in with initiative to serve. Interns who are willing to work hard, who have practical skills (cooking, cleaning, maintenance, yard work), and are characteristically flexible, serving as excellent support to the multinational team who minister there long term.

Since France has one of the lowest percentages of Evangelical Christians in the world (1/30th the percentage of Christians in the United States), the Château serves the vital role of providing a location where Christians can spend time with those who don't yet know Jesus Christ, build relationships, and partner with other believers to further God's work in France.
